Area Residents Appointed to Gov Judicial Commission

Gov. Hickenlooper announces Boards and Commissions appointments

DENVER — Wednesday, Nov. 13, 2013 — Gov. John Hickenlooper announced several Boards and Commissions appointments today. The appointments were to the State Commission of Judicial Performance; the 1st through 15th Judicial District judicial nominating commissions; and the 17th through 22nd Judicial District judicial nominating commissions. Colorado's 22 judicial districts have judicial district performance commissions that provide voters with fair, responsible and constructive evaluations of judges and justices seeking retention. The results also provide judges with information to help improve their professional skills as judicial officers. District Commissions evaluate the performance of county and district court judges in their judicial district during the judge's current term of office, which is the past two years for new (provisional) judges, the past four years for county court judges, and the past six years for district court judges. The governor has made appointments to these 22 judicial performance commissions. The members appointed for terms effective Dec. 1, 2013 and expiring on Nov. 30, 2017:

15th Judicial District Judicial Performance Commission:

- Brenda Stoker of Eads, to serve as a non-attorney.
- Regina Dorenkamp of Holly, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed.

Letter to the Editor: NOVEMBER: A TIME TO REMEMBER AND A TIME TO ACT

Before he served in Congress and before he went to the White House, Lieutenant John Kennedy was the commander of torpedo boats in the South Pacific during World War II. His distinguished military career resulted in being awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Medal and the Purple Heart. He was proud of his service and once said, "I can imagine no more rewarding a career."

The President must have given thought to his own years in combat when, on November 5 of 1963, he issued a proclamation for Thanksgiving, a holiday he would not live to see. In the proclamation, he wrote in part of the nation's gratitude to America's veterans.

"Much time has passed since President Washington led a young people into the experience of nationhood, much time since President Lincoln saw the American nation through the ordeal of fraternal war," he wrote. "As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them."

Those words ring just as true today as they did 50 years ago — perhaps even more so. It goes without saying that we should thank veterans for their service, that we should recognize their important contributions to our freedom and honor those who paid the supreme sacrifice. But, as President Kennedy stressed, "the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them."

The highest appreciation Coloradans can show is to ensure that their homecoming will signal the start of an important next chapter in their lives. For young veterans in particular, that begins with a good job. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, post 9/11 veterans have an unemployment rate of 10.1 percent, nearly 3 percent higher than the national average, and among this group the unemployment rate for women veterans is even higher.

At the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment and at state and county-run Workforce Centers, we take pride in assisting veterans year round, ensuring they have the preparation and readiness to make a successful transition into the civilian workforce. We are a conduit to employment and training but the real heroes are the employers who give them a chance to show what they can do.

These employers know that veterans have the proven ability to learn new skills and concepts, that they have an understanding of how teamwork grows out of a responsibility to one's colleagues. The best employers recognize that military duties have taught veterans to understand the rigors of tight schedules and limited resources. They know that these new hires can grasp their place within an organizational framework and are committed to doing "an honest day's work."

Governor Hickenlooper has issued a proclamation declaring November as Hire A Veteran Month. The proclamation underscores what great employers already know: the economic returns to our state in getting these talented men and women into good paying jobs are critical to Colorado's competitiveness. The investment we make in helping veterans make the leap from the battlefield to the business world will be paying all of us dividends throughout the century.

To every business that knows the value of helping veterans succeed, the Department of Labor and Employment says thank you. Our work on behalf of veterans (we are currently serving more than 44,000) draws its strength from you. Your investment in your community and in the veterans who are a part of it gets to the heart of what President Kennedy spoke of just 23 days before his death. Gratitude must be more than words. It must be lived.

(Editor) Golombek is Executive Director of the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment

PWC Approves 2014 Fishing Regs, Moves Drone Ban Forward

LAMAR, Colo. – The Colorado Parks and Wildlife Commission approved the 2014 fishing regulations and took other regulatory action during its November meeting in Lamar. Commissioners also began the two-step process of setting general regulations for 2014, including a potential ban on the use of drones for hunting or scouting in Colorado.

The newly adopted fishing regulations for 2014 will take effect with the April 1, 2014 start of the fishing license year. The new regulations add tiger trout and cutbow to the list of game fish in the state and apply daily bag and possession limits for those species. The regulations also restrict fishing methods and harvest on designated cutthroat trout conservation waters in the state. New regulations also seek to encourage harvest by removing bag and possession limits on brown trout on the Dolores River below the Bradfield Bridge, for yellow perch at Spinney Mountain Reservoir and for walleye in Stagecoach Reservoir.

Commissioners also set the 2014 regulations for turkey hunting in the state. The changes approved include regulations opening private-land hunting in GMUs 91 and 92 to over-the-counter in the spring; adding youth-only spring turkey licenses in GMUs 91, 92, 96, 101 and 102; add private-land-only spring bearded turkey licenses in GMU 444.

In other action, Commissioners approved the 2014 Commission meeting calendar, which included elimination of monthly meetings in February and October as part of the effort to reduce spending. Additional spending cuts were discussed that will help Colorado Parks and Wildlife trim the agency budget by $9.9 million beginning in fiscal year 2014, which begins next July.

Commissioners also approved the final "Path Forward" document, a strategic planning document for Colorado Parks and Wildlife that will be provided to the legislature as part of the requirements of the legislation that merged Colorado State Parks and the Colorado Division of Wildlife. The Path Forward report was built through an extensive public input process and identifies the important items ahead for the agency. Information about the path forward process is available online.
