Geocaching Along the Santa Fe Trail

Ever wondered what the new Santa Fe Trail geocache containers look like? What treasures you'll find inside? Then you'll want to join in the Bent's Fort Chapter field trip on Saturday, March 14, and discover some of the geocaches right here in Southeast Colorado.

We'll meet at 10 AM at the Big Timbers Museum in Lamar, CO where we'll search for our first geocache container. Then it's on to Bent's New Fort, Fort Lyon, Boggsville, and end our search at Bent's Old Fort.

Bring along a sack lunch, your Smartphone or GPS if you have one, be prepared for whatever the weather may bring, and be ready for adventure. Led by Kevin Lindahl, it should be a great day of fun and exploration. If you have any questions, please call Pat Palmer at 719-931-4323.

The Big Timbers Museum is located northwest of Lamar at the junction of Hwys 50 and 287. No Smartphone or GPS, not a problem. They'll be folks along that will share or just come see how geocaching works. Either way, it should be a fun day.
